Development Induced Displacement And Resettlement New Perspectives On Persisting Problems Routledge Studies In Development Displacement And Resettlement

Development-induced resettlement is one of the most important issues associated with large-scale infrastructure projects. The problems encountered in the allocation of compensation and resettlement in such projects form the focus of the authors. The experiences of the Yawen dam project in the Yangtze river Valley Project in South Asia are highlighted to serve as illustrations.

"Development-induced resettlement is one of the most important issues associated with large scale infrastructure projects. The problems encountered in the allocation of compensation and resettlement in such projects form the focus of the authors. The experiences of the Yawen dam project in the Yangtze river Valley Project in South Asia are highlighted to serve as illustrations." (www.wakati.co)

Improving outcomes in development-induced displacement and resettlement

"Improving outcomes in development-induced displacement and resettlement (DIDR) is one of the dominant causes of internal displacement and resettlement annually. ... Each year over 15 million people are forced to abandon their homes to make space for economic development infrastructure. " (www.wakati.co)

Development-induced resettlement is one of the most important issues associated with large-scale infrastructure projects. The problems encountered in the allocation of compensation and resettlement in such projects form the focus of the authors. The experiences of the Yawen dam project in the Yangtze river Valley Project in South Asia are highlighted to serve as illustrations.

"Development-induced resettlement is one of the most important issues associated with large scale infrastructure projects. The problems encountered in the allocation of compensation and resettlement in such projects form the focus of the authors. The experiences of the Yawen dam project in the Yangtze river Valley Project in South Asia are highlighted to serve as illustrations." (www.wakati.co)